The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

During hard times, there is a tendency to save on food. This, decidedly, is a poor economy, because the right foods are so essential to health. Do not assume, however, that you must overeat to be healthy. Particularly you do not have to overeat in winter to provide your body with excessive heat.

The amount of heat in our bodies is regulated by physical means, and is controlled more by the amount of heat lost than by the quantity of food taken in.

People who live without clothing have to develop more heat than others, because they lose more heat from information to the history of a breed which even the parent specialty club of that breed did not know previously.

"Along with the history and standard of each breed—the standards are those adopted by the specialty club which govern the separate breeds—go pictures representing each type of dog. Most of the pictures are of outstanding champions and as nearly as possible represent perfection in the breed.

"At the back of the book is a glossary of technical terms, with graphic illustrations of such things as 'roach back,' 'stifle,' 'cow hock,' etc. Using these along with the pictures, a student should be able to get a relative idea of, let us say, 'stifle well bent,' or 'tuck up,' or, indeed, almost any part of the anatomy of a dog.

"Pure-Bred Dogs" is actually six volumes made into one and selling for $5. But for the benefit of people who may feel this to be too great an outlay of capital, the work may be bought in separate volumes, as follows: Vol. 1, Sporting Dogs; Vol. 2, Sporting Dogs (Hounds); Vol. 3, Working Dogs; Vol. 4, Terriers; Vol. 5, Toy Dogs; Vol. 6, Non-sporting.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

"I shouldn't have taken cream in my coffee," sighed Aunt Molly, "but I can't resist it. I know perfectly well that I'll be sick."

"I do wish Annie wouldn't put curd away on her cookies," said mother, "the very smell of it makes me ill." Daddy said the dessert wouldn't go well with the fish, and passed it up. William coughed and his mother wondered if he had caught something. The entire conversation at the table was one of apprehension.

Small Ruth ate her allotment of digestible foods but she had not had any exercise that day, so left her second piece of bread untouched.

"Ruthie, eat your other piece," begged mother. "And there is still some milk in your glass."

"I don't want it," said the child simply. That was all there was to it as far as she was concerned. But the ever-vigilant mother stared hard at her daughter and a little frown gathered.

Planting Seeds of "Illness"

"Do you feel all right dear? I think her eyes look heavy, don't you John? Grandma, feel her head and see if she's hot."

"She does feel a bit warm," admitted grandma. "I'll go up, and get the thermometer."

The thermometer showed exactly normal, but Ruthie knew it to be associated with illness. After supper she did not play but lay on the sofa and was very quiet.

"I don't like the way she is acting at all," commented mother. "William, have you been in anybody's house where there is sickness? Are any of the children around here ill?"

William didn't know. Boylike, he didn't pay any attention to all this sickness talk, besides, he was used to it. Ruthie, more sensitive to impressions, decided she was sick and said so.

She was hurried off to bed with more fuss and temperature-taking, and finally dropped off to sleep. In the morning everybody in the house had forgotten about it, including Ruthie herself.

Mental Attitude Affects Health

No visible harm was done, but the atmosphere of a house that rotates about symptoms and health is not the best. Perhaps in time this little girl will absorb the idea that sickness is normal, and that she will be doing a favor to those over-anxious ones by justifying their worries once in a while. Her mental attempts will be toward illness rather than away from it.

Most doctors today concede the fact that certain mental attitudes affect physical function. If the thought of a lemon can produce extra saliva or an imaginative dose of castor oil tighten throat muscles, is it not reasonable to suppose that other sorts of suggestion will affect involuntary control of nerves?

Fear produces indigestion. Excitement speeds up, or paralyzes, according to kind. Talk is bound to react either favorably or unfavorably. The hardest-headed doubter in the world must admit that disturbed emotion will in time act adversely to good health. Let us all be careful what we say before or to our impressionable children.

"But suppose I don't care to go?"

"I'm afraid that couldn't change our plans now," Woodford told her. "Surely you wouldn't spoil the fun for the rest of the party by asking me to turn the Wood Nymph back to the city now?"

JULIA did not reply at once. She looked over the rail for a long moment—then answered

Glorifying Yourself

By Alicia Hart

"A woman is truly beautiful when she is radiant with health, vivid with wisdom, keen in her intellect and warm in her human understanding and sympathy," says Eleanor Royce, lovely young English dancer.

"As long as the features of a girl's face aren't actually out of proportion—not really homely—they matter a good deal less than many people seem to think," the slim little dancer continued.

"Perfect features may be essential for mere prettiness, but for real beauty they aren't necessary at all. If a woman has clear, soft skin; if her eyes are lovely; if her smile lights her face, and she is vibrant with health, I defy the most critical connoisseur to say she isn't beautiful," Miss Royce ended her analysis.

Then the girl who with her brother has created a considerable furore among lovers of exhibition dancing went on to talk about magnetism.

"Without it no woman can be beautiful. It springs largely from an overflowing vitality, which is, in turn, born of perfect health."

To attain the health that makes for magnetism, Miss Royce recommends dancing, swimming, tennis and long brisk walks.

"Another important help is relaxation. And when I say 'relaxation,' I don't mean half-way measures. It must be complete to eradicate strain and the effects of driving modern life on the nerves. If I were to select the one thing essential to the achievement of magnetism and maintenance of beauty of face and body, I would say relaxation. Everyone should learn to 'let go' with such absolute abandon that not a nerve, not a muscle is taut during the rest period."

Real beauty has come to mean something quite different from what it did in the days when to be considered pretty was every girl's ambition. Indeed, the very word "pretty" has been replaced by such terms as smart, good looking, charming, beautiful, exotic, individual-looking, chic, trim and neat.

Modern woman wants to be all of these, of course. If she can't she'll take any one of them in preference to "pretty."

As a result of all the talk about the importance of sleek coiffures, diets, tailored clothes and individual make-up, there are, as a matter of fact, few pretty girls. By this I mean the curly-headed, plump-cheeked woman who was just that—pretty—and nothing more. In her place we have the exclusively groomed simply dressed girl with haircut that shows the shape of her fine head, a just-right figure—not fat, but not flat like the post-war curvaceous bodies—and feminine appeal that spells beauty rather than mere prettiness.

There always have been women like this, of course, but they used to be generously interspersed with pretty ones because prettiness was the vogue. If you doubt that it isn't today, look at screen and stage stars whose looks and personal appearances either set a trend or reflect it (I never can figure which way it works out).

A new hangar is planned for the Illinois National Guard squadron at Chicago's municipal airport.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

If you can trace your ancestry back to the Revolution, you needn't get all "het up" about it. Your pet dog can do that and 10 times more. His family tree runs "way back to the time of the Pharaohs, and he thinks nothing of it.

This information is contained in "Pure-Bred Dogs," a fat book edited by the American Kennel Club and published by G. Howard Watt. Max Riddle, an authority on canine matters, reviews the book as follows:

"Much as the word is used and misused, 'monumental' is about the only word that describes the task of tracing the families of dogs from 4000 B. C. to date. Pure-Bred Dogs does so, and in so doing occasionally adds

"How's that, Royal?" asked the host.

"I promised to put her in touch with someone who'd give her a chance in one of the night clubs," Julia laughed. "You really shouldn't feel badly about it, Mr. Nesbitt. I've had that happen to me before." She gave Woodford a sidelong glance, was maliciously pleased to note his discomfort.

"I meant it, though," Nesbitt assured her. "The fact is, I've been pretty busy. Then this invitation of George's came along, and I couldn't refuse. But the moment we got back in town I'll set the wheels turning." He looked at her. "How's Amy?"

A Prophecy

Meh, my brothers, men the workers, ever reaping something new. That which they have done has earnest of the things that they shall do: For I dip into the future, far as human eye could see, Saw the Vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be; Saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails, Pinets of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales; Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rain'd a ghastly dew From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue; Far along the world-wide whisper of the south wind rushing warm, With the standards of the peoples plugging thro' the thunder storm; Till the war-drum throbb'd no longer, and the battle flags were furled In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world. There the common sense of most shall hold a fretful realm in awe, And the kindly earth shall slumber, lapt in universal law.

Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler at Saenger

"Shipmates Forever" on Local Screen Thursday and Friday

Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler are again co-starring in the new drama-musical, "Shipmates Forever," which opens at the Saenger today.

The famous screen lovers who made their first hit in "42nd Street," following it with "Gold Diggers of 1933," "Flirtation Walk" and other screen successes, appear in their most pretentious picture in "Shipmates Forever," a thrilling drama of midshipman life at the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Dick sings a number of catchy songs which fall naturally into the plot, he being a crooner at a New York park casino before becoming a naval cadet. Miss Keeler, who plays the part of an orphaned daughter of a naval officer, is compelled to earn her living dancing in a night club, gives an exhibition of fancy foot dancing with the famous Meglin Kiddies.

The traditional customs of the Naval Academy are all woven into the romantic and exciting plot which soars in suspense to the breath-taking climax when Powell dashes through flame and scalding steam to rescue a shipmate, and thereby winning a bride.

England Accepts

point where official denials were issued from the court. In the case of Helena, daughter of the English Queen Marie of Rumania, a noted royal matchmaker, the rumor died only when a story went the rounds that the prince himself had said "Helena's a pretty kid, but I am still going on being a bachelor."

Romances With English Girls Also Fade Out

More highly regarded in court circles were the repeated rumors of the prince's engagement to English girls of noble blood. Lady Rachel Cavendish, Lady May Cambridge, Lady Ann Wellesley, Lady Eileen Butler, Lady Furness, and the Countess Carrick were among those mentioned in recurrent rumors.

While the prince was on a hunting trip to Africa, Lady Ann fell ill, and daily reports from her bedside were radioed to him.

That last strength to this report, but as usual nothing came of it. Lady Ann has since married.

There have been other London society women, of high position, but not of noble blood, with whom the prince has been friendly for many years, but none of these friendships has given rise to any serious talk of a royal marriage.

The prince's free-and-easy manner of dancing with whomsoever seized his fancy when on parties has often again blossomed out in rumors of newspaper stories, especially in America.

At one time during 1929 he danced frequently with Adele Astaire in London, and his dancing with Irma Chery in Berlin in 1931, with Carolyn Granberry at Panama City in 1931, Eileen Stanley in New York the same year, and Joyce Lindsey in New York in 1934 all brought their share of open-mouthed comment from the press.

Just Another Dance With Pretty Partner

To few commentators did it occur that the prince was just like any other young man—he liked to dance with pretty girls, and did so on every convenient occasion. And that was really all there was to that.

Youth Gets 10 Years for 17-Cent Robbery

CORNING, Ark.—(AP)—Convicted of beating and robbing an aged man of 17 cents, Eddie Alexander, 22, was sentenced to 10 years in prison by a Clay county jury here Wednesday.

Midget Money Is Asked by Wiseman

Would Solve Problem of Sales Tax Question, He Says

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The "midget money" plan probably will be before Congress again soon.

State Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman of Arkansas, leader in a campaign to enlist support of the 28 states having sales taxes, said here Wednesday he would come back to Washington within a month to seek authorization for smaller than one-cent pieces.

Wiseman has conferred with Treasury officials several times and has said the department appeared less opposed to midget money legislation this year than last when a bill providing such money was blocked in a house committee.

"One and five-mill pieces would solve the problem of sales tax collections," said Wiseman. "They would also be the means of saving the sales taxpayer some money, because he now pays as much as a 10 per cent tax on small articles."

The revenue commissioners of practically all the sales tax states have informed me they will support the move before congress, and I expect some action this session."

Plan Paved Roads for Mississippi

Hugh White, New Governor, Promises Immediate Action

JACKSON, Miss.—(AP)—Promising paved roads, industrial expansion and governmental reforms, Hugh Lawson White, 58, millionaire South Mississippi lumberman, succeeded Martin Sennett Connor as governor of Mississippi Tuesday.

Mississippi's 45th governor pledged himself to four years of effort "to balance agriculture with industry" in this predominantly Agrarian state, and to launch the state immediately upon a hard-surfaced road program.

He said he would reveal from time to time details of his program for industrializing Mississippi, but of road building, he promised immediate action.

"My sole desire is to see that we are gotten out of the mud, dust and gravel as quickly as possible, consistent with sound business principles and the judicious expenditure of public funds," he said.

An eight-month school term, free textbooks, a $1 automobile tag and economy in governmental spending were other objectives.

The legislature has before it a road-paving bill proposing an expenditure of $30,000,000, of which the Public Works Administration is expected to provide $15,000,000.

A house committee will hold an open hearing on the road measure Wednesday and hopes to bring the measure to the floor this week.

Immigration Brilliant Affair

The inauguration was one of the most colorful in Mississippi's history. Thousands lined Jackson's Capitol street to watch a three-mile-long parade, in which nearly a dozen bands, and approximately 2,000 state militia-men participated.

Good Collection Loans Predicted

Rehabilitation Farmers in State Show Real Progress in 1935

LITTLE ROCK—Pending tabulation of complete collection figures for Arkansas, A. M. Rogers, state director for the Resettlement Administration predicted Thursday that repayment of loans made to approximately 17,000 rural rehabilitation clients in Arkansas during the 1935 program will exceed all previous estimates and "will prove beyond question that the granting of supervised loans to worthy farm families without other means of credit is financially sound as well as socially desirable."

"Our clients have produced good crops this year in most sections of the state and have stored enough food and feed to insure them an adequate supply during the winter months," Rogers said.

Practically all of the subsistence loans have been repaid as well as annual installments on capital goods. Capital goods loans are usually repaid in from two to five annual installments and are secured by the usual commercial lien on capital items such as livestock, tools etc. Subsidized loans are made for necessary food, clothing, school books, medical services etc.

While the Resettlement Administration removed farmers from the relief rolls and accepted them as clients, it is not a relief agency, Rogers explained. Loans made to rehabilitation and resettlement clients are carefully made and are supervised by the RA until repaid.

"The splendid collection record being made in Arkansas proved conclusively that at the average rehabilitation family wants is an opportunity to work out his own salvation," said the director.

Rogers said some 1935 loan collections are still being made. He estimated that accurate figures will be available within two weeks.

Trial in Bremer Case Nears End

Jury Expected to Receive Case Late Thursday or Friday

ST. PAUL—(AP)—Kidnaping was described as the "most horrendous crime" known to man as the trial of three men charged with conspiracy in the $200,000 Edward G. Bremer abduction reached its final stages Wednesday.

George Heisey, assistant United States district attorney, opening final arguments, outlined evidence presented against Harry Sawyer, charged as "fingerman," William Weaver, alleged participant in the seizure of Bremer January 17, 1934, and Cassius McDonald, Detroit engineer who, the government charges, exchanged ransom money for other currency in Cuba.

The defense rested suddenly Wednesday after Sawyer and Weaver had denied their guilt. McDonald did not testify. The case was expected to reach the jury late Thursday or Friday.

Insurance Head Is Accident Victim

William A. Law Killed When Shotgun Is Discharged

GREENSBORO, N. C.—(AP)—William A. Law of Philadelphia, president of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, died in a hospital here early Tuesday night of a wound he suffered when a shotgun in the hand of S. Clay Williams, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company executive, was discharged accidentally.

Law, Williams and A. L. Brooks, Greensboro lawyer, were both hunting near Siler City when the accident occurred about 3 Tuesday afternoon. Law was struck in the leg just below the knee. He lost considerable blood before medical attention could be obtained and physicians attributed death mainly to this cause. He was about 70 years old.

Brooks said William's foot became entangled in a clump of honeysuckle, causing him to trip and accidentally discharge a shell in his gun. The load struck Law at a distance of 20 feet.

After being given emergency attention at Siler City, Law was placed in an ambulance and brought to Wesley-Low hospital here. He died within a few minutes after arriving.

The Penn Mutual president, a native of Spartanburg, S. C., had been at the Brushy Creek Hunting Club, on the land of which the accident occurred, since last Wednesday. He was joined Friday by Williams and Brooks. All were members of the club.

Arkansas' Woman Senator Delivers First Address Before Congress

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Huey P. Long returned to the senate Wednesday through the plaudits of his friends, but the shouting and the tumult that accompanied his physical presence were strangely absent.

In a quiet that was almost tranquil, associates of the Louisiana who was slain last summer heard him eulogized by Senators Overton (D-La.), Lewis (D-Mo.), Thomas (D-Okla.) and Hattie Caraway (D-Ark.).

Senators swung their chairs around to give careful heed to Overton, who delivered the first and elaborate speech. They gave close attention too to Mrs. Caraway, whose address was the first she has delivered before the senate.
